Welcome to the best four years of your life! College provides a kick-ass opportunity for you to find yourself. After packing up your life and stepping foot into your dorm room, you've got the whole world (or at least an entire campus) at your feet. To make the most of it, we've compiled some lists you likely haven't seen yet. We're not here to tell you to spend a lot of time studying, join as many clubs as you can, or avoid the Freshmen 15—you've heard all that before. The advice that follows comes from college veterans who have been exactly where you are now, and survived.

Our Lists:

Things You Likely Forgot to Pack 11
Things to Include in Your Backpack 11
Apps That Will Save Your Life 11
Things That Will Definitely Happen 13
Places to Go and How to Get There 27
Ways to Fail College 29

THINGS THAT WILL DEFINITELY HAPPEN

- YOU'LL GET LOCKED OUT OF YOUR DORM ROOM

To avoid this, keep your keys on you (#duh) but don't use that standard lanyard they gave to the thousands of other freshmen. Find yourself a keychain, or some other way to know you've always got your keys. Worst case scenario—make sure you can always contact your roomie, and remember your RA deals with this stuff all the time.

- YOU'LL GET LOST ON CAMPUS

The obvious fix: take time to walk through the campus before the first class starts to find your classrooms and the various halls you'll spend most of your time in for the next few years. Bonus: everybody's got a smartphone now, so utilizing a campus map isn't as conspicuous as it was for your parent's generation. Don't be afraid to ask that cutie in line at the coffee shop how to get somewhere either.

- YOU'LL BE POOR

This is not avoidable, try as you might. Sure, it is possible you [hopefully] saved some money over the summer or maybe your parents are supportive, but either way now is not the time to Uber everywhere, treat your friends to coffees or dinners, or shop 'til you drop. Keep an eye on deals and your bank account and you'll find a way to make it to Christmas break, at which point you'll reevaluate getting that on-campus job.

- YOU'LL SPEND TOO MUCH TIME ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND WATCHING NETFLIX

Everybody does this, and there's not necessarily anything wrong with it, until you cross the line and your neck is strained from looking at your phone for 6 hours straight swiping through Tinder, posting your hilarious wit on Twitter, or binging the new Stranger Things. Too much time spent on these things will sacrifice study time, friendships, and other opportunities. Remember real life is always more rewarding so shut it off for a while. Don't you remember that Black Mirror episode?

- YOU'LL THROW UP AT A PARTY

Try as you might, and you'll still end up with your head in the bushes at some point. Make sure you've got a buddy, and down a bit of Pedialyte. Next time, remember this humiliation and maybe skip that last red solo cup or kegstand.

- YOU'LL MISS YOUR FAMILY AND FRIENDS

Even though you never thought you would, you're starting to miss your little brother's fart jokes, or your sister stealing your latest Sephora haul. That's totally okay! And remember they're only a phone call/Skype session/FaceTime away. They'll be dying to hear about your life and it'll feel good to connect with them, but don't cave in to packing your suitcase every weekend and going back to visit.

- YOU'LL SKIP CLASS

Go ahead—sometimes you need that nap. But if you find yourself skipping class to level up on the new Halo release, you'll fall behind faster than you realize. Get up and just start walking. Once you're there it's hard to deny that class really isn't that hard. And if it is? Find those office hours for your professor and talk it out. That's what they're there for.

- YOU'LL GET SICK OF THE DINING HALL

You'll try to live on the pizza, or refuse to walk out without swinging by the dessert bar. You don't have the money to stop eating there, so get creative. Find a way to use the salad bar to fill up by adding rice or pasta, use a toast bar to perfect your avocado toast recipe, or try something you never thought you'd consider eating.

- YOU'LL WALK INTO THE WRONG CLASS

Embarrassment will ensue. Slip out quietly, red-faced. People will understand, because everybody's done it. Don't suffer through it and wait. Chances are nobody will remember by the time class lets out anyhow.

- YOU'LL RUN OUT OF CLEAN LAUNDRY

This isn't just a college problem. It happens to everybody, all the time. It's hard to set aside time to do such a mundane task, but get yourself on a schedule and keep up. One load of laundry a week is easier to get done than five, and you won't have to fight for a machine as often.

- YOU'LL GET SICK

Hopefully Mom was smart enough to send a first aid kit with you (if not, keep reading for other things you forgot to pack). Drink some fluids, skip that party, and get some rest... and use that cough syrup responsibly! You'll be miserable and wish someone would bring you your favorite comfort foods. This is a perfect time to call your family and extract some pity out of them, but then move on with your life.

Hi,

For the last year and a half I've been creating Left Click Lounge, a premium video game lounge coming to Dinkytown 9/8/17.

CLICKS WITHOUT CLIQUES

Our slogan sums up our mission, to offer a place where anyone can come enjoy a common hobby: playing video games.

I do have a favor to ask however, could you take a moment and talk to or text someone you care about and let them know why they're important to you. Life is short and unpredictable, and I bet it will make their day.

Thanks, Ryan
